FROM THE VICE-RECTOR: CANON JEAN-BAPTISTE COMMINS

ON THE GOSPEL OF THE DAY,

« Lord it is good for us to be here », yes Lord is it good for us to be here in your presence. Like the Apostles we rejoice in your presence, our faith teaches us that your body, your blood, your soul and your divinity are truly present in that little host, lifted up every day by your priest's hands. Like the Apostles, we know that everything comes from You and returns to You. We know that your precious blood is still running through the veins of your Church today, that one mass is enough to proof the infinity of your love for us. But unfortunately "like the Apostles, we, also, have sinned like them, continues Dom Gueranger we have neglected to profit of the help that was sent us from heaven; we have shut our eyes against the light; we have forgotten the fair vision that was granted us, and which made us so fervent and happy; - and we fell. We have not, then, been tempted above our strength [1 Cor. x. 13], and it is indeed our own fault that we committed sin."
